Shanley Named Dean of Students

President Russell Warren has announced the appointment of Mark Shanley as dean of students. Shanley is assistant vice president for student affairs/dean of student development at the University of South Carolina-Columbia. His duties begin in July.

Shanley succeeds Vonnie Nichols, who was appointed acting dean of students in 1991.

"Mark brings a broad array of student development experience to our student affairs program," Warren said. "I am confident he will continue the great work already being done."

Shanley said Northeast's reputation, liberal arts and sciences approach, quality student body, and commitment to active learning and assessment attracted him.

"I'm very appreciative of those particular qualities and they are very consistent with my background and interests and skills and abilities," Shanley said.

"Over the past 17 years, I feel I've been involved in a continuous professional development program to prepare me for this role and for the challenges of the student affairs position at Northeast. I've accumulated a wide variety of experiences in different settings that I hope will make it easier for me to envision what the future might hold for student affairs and student life at Northeast," Shanley said.

Previously, Shanley served as director of student development and associate dean of student affairs at the University of South Carolina, and as director of student activities at Youngstown State University in Ohio.

Improving University Computers

Northeast is making substantial changes in the University computer systems. Five projects are in the planning stages: an upgrade of the academic computers, improvements to the residence hall computer labs, replacement of the financial system, installation of a fiber optic campus backbone, and a building wiring project. It has been estimated that these improvements will cost a total of about $1.4 million.

Before making this major decision final, the University utilized a consulting group to evaluate the situation and offer advice and a second opinion. EDUCOM, a nonprofit consortium of colleges and universities, for the job, partly because of their price and partly because of their experience with higher education, said David Rector, director of Computer Services.

Shanley holds a bachelor's in psychology from the University of Cincinnati, a master's in education from Indiana University and a doctorate from the University of South Carolina-Columbia. In 1992, he completed the Harvard Management Development Program, and in 1988, he attended the NASPA/ACE Chief Student Affairs Administrators Institute.

"I am in this field singularly and totally because I enjoy working with college students. That's why I joined the field. That's why I've stayed in the field," Shanley said.

In addition to working with the students and the student affairs staff, Shanley aspires to establish a collaborative relationship with the faculty on campus.

"I believe it is important to relate the academic experiences students get in the classroom to the out-of-classroom experiences they have to provide a total learning environment," Shanley said.

Shanley said the warm welcome he received on campus reaffirmed his interest in regaining his Midwestern roots. Originally from Ottawa, Ill., Shanley has family in St. Louis and Illinois.

"My family and I are truly energized and excited about coming to Northeast and to Kirksville. As we prepare to raise our family we are very interested in doing that in the Midwest," Shanley said.

Shanley and his wife, Pam, have two children: Ian, four years old; and Dana, four months old.

"In the short time that I had during the interview process, I developed a very high regard about the board for all the students, faculty and staff I came in contact with. I feel very positive about helping them continue their fine work," Shanley said.

Two consultants from EDUCOM were assigned to Northeast: Bruce Briggs, from the J. Paul Getty Trust, and Robert Lutz, director of computing at Drake University. They met with faculty, the Instructional Services Committee, the Student Senate president, a group of students, the academic division heads, and key administrative and support staff, nearly 60 different people in all, regarding current computing resources and long-term technology needs.

"Basically, they agreed that these were the current priorities and helped us decide in what order to attack them," Rector said.

One project, the improvement of residence hall computer labs, has already started. New printers and Macintosh computers are going

Meeting in the SUB Georgian Room 4 p.m.

The agenda will include: A University update by President Russell G. Warren, progress report on the North Central Association evaluation, A Higher Order of Excellence, and other items of interest. All University faculty members are invited.

Nichols To Head Human Resources

Dean of Students Vonnie Nichols has been named director of human resources. Nichols will begin her new position in July, upon the retirement of Russ Harrison, current director of human resources.

"I am honored to be chosen for this position. Russ Harrison has done a great job of getting the newly created human resources department off and running," Nichols said. "I believe we will grow to be an even richer resource to our employees."

Nichols has worked in student affairs at Northeast for two decades. Previously, she served as assistant dean of residential living.

"Vonnie brings to human resources some 20 years of experience and a total commitment to Northeast Missouri State University," President Warren said. "She has the innate ability to relate well to people and their concerns, which is vital to this important position."

In addition to her duties as the human resources director, Nichols will serve as the liaison between the Commission on Community and President Warren. She has served as an ex-officio member of the Commission since its inception.

"It is critical that the Commission on Community's efforts and recommendations are implemented and that their work this past year remain in the forefront on the minds of the campus community," Warren said. "Vonnie's role as a liaison will ensure that the Commission's plans are being carried out and that their needs are being met."

Nichols said she is looking forward to working with the Commission and feels honored to be involved in the implementation process.

"The Commission has done a fantastic job of deciding important initiatives and coming up with a multitude of wonderful ideas to create an awareness of community within our community," Nichols said. "I am appreciative of the many hours each of the Commission member has devoted to this project and I look forward to seeing their great ideas come to fruition."

The Campus Activities Fee and a Student Senate Constitutional Amendment will also be on the ballot.

Kay Anderson (Anderson-Reilly):

Experience, Ideas, Enthusiasm, Commitment...These are the fundamental elements of the Anderson-Reilly platform which characterizes the contributions I pledge to make as Student Senate President. The three years I have served on Student Senate as Vice President, Secretary and Councilwoman have given me the experience and knowledge of the challenges Student Senate has faced and the ways it must change in the future. With concrete for the Student Association and the enthusiasm to carry them out, I commit myself to making Student Senate a more representative voice of the Student Association, to keeping the Student Association informed and involved in Student Senate, and to working towards the continual betterment of the University community by seeking to make the good, better, and the better, best.

Matthew Barnes:

As Student Senate president, my most immediate contribution would be change. A change in the approach to student government led by a TRUE student representative. Through my involvement in a number of campus organizations, I have been able to develop leadership experience, and what may prove to be more important, friendships and working relationships with both students and administration. These relationships will allow me to bridge the gap between students and NMSU administration, faculty and staff. As Student Senate President, I, Matthew Barnes, will concentrate on building a more approachable student government. Northeast students deserve a strong representing body and I have the ability to build the bridges that will establish Student Senate as a true voice of, and for, students. A familiar quote from the movie "Dead Poets Society" is Carpe Diem or Seize the Day. The phrase I want you to remember is Carpe Hunc Diem or Seize This Day and make the 1993-94 Student Senate YOUR senate. Vote for Matthew Barnes on April 22

Chris Wilson:

As Student Senate president, my enthusiasm, knowledge about University life, and an inclusive leadership style will benefit the student body.

My enthusiasm for Student Senate and for this University will infuse others with energy, making our student government more dynamic and appealing to the student body.

The term I served as Freshman Representative during the 1991-92 academic year will give me insight into the structure and functions of Student Senate. However, this past year, in which I was not involved in Student Senate, has given me the perspective of an average student and their needs and desires.

Finally, I believe my inclusive leadership style will be able to access many opinions on issues and give the student body a real voice in their future.

Speaker Series to Host Abortion Debate

One of America's most prominent conservative activists will debate the issue of abortion with America's leading litigator and legal expert on reproductive rights on campus, April 26.

The University Speaker Series will present the debate on abortion featuring Phyllis Schafly and Janet Benshoof April 26, at 7:30 p.m., in the SUB Activities Room.

The University Speaker Series is incorporating the goals of the Commission on Community in its choice of topics for the 1993-94 academic year. The theme of the series is "Building Community: Exploring Issues of Diversity." The Commission on Community's stated purpose is to establish a true sense of community in relations among members of NMSU and its surrounding communities.

Ben Ogden, assistant professor of Spanish and chair of the Speaker Series committee, believes the topic of abortion might contribute to the development of a stronger sense of community.

He explains, "Because the topic of abortion can polarize an audience, the committee hopes to address, before the debate, that the purpose is to educate the audience of the validity of both sides to the issue. By acknowledging both sides as valid, we can learn how to live together. In fact, the committee plans to ask both speakers how they think community, instead of polarization, can be generated from the topic of abortion."

Phyllis Schafly is one of America's most prominent conservative activists and, perhaps, best known for her contributions to the defeat of the Equal Rights Amendment.

A graduate of Harvard and Washington Universities, Schafly currently works as a syndicated newspaper columnist, a daily radio commentator, and as a host of a weekly radio calling program.

She has also written several books and has published a monthly newsletter, The Phyllis Schafly Report, for more than 20 years.

Janet Benshoof is recognized as America's leading litigator and legal expert on reproductive rights. She is the founder and current head of The Center for Reproductive Law and Policy, a non-profit advocacy and educational organization, and is the former director of the ACLU's Reproductive Freedom Project.

Also a graduate of Harvard Law School, Benshoof has aided in numerous cases concerning health and women's rights. For example, she argued against Pennsylvania's restrictive abortion statute before the U.S. Supreme Court in 1992, participated in the successful Supreme Court challenge of an Ohio statute to discourage abortion, and aided in the successful nationwide challenge of the Reagan Administration's "Squeal Rule."

Benshoof has had articles published in the Harvard Law Review and New York University's Journal of International Law and Politics and has authored chapters in forthcoming books on fetal personhood and constitutional law.

Considered a legal expert, she is a respected speaker on issues concerning reproductive rights because of her conviction to the right to privacy and the right to choose.

The debate between Schafly and Benshoof is free and open to the public.

Notables

Stephen Allen, assistant professor of business administration, has received notification that his paper "Active Learning Using Multi-Media in the Production and Operations Management Classroom: Requirements, Results and Observations" has been selected as an annual Irwin Distinguished Paper Award winner in the production/operations category. Each year Irwin Publishing recognizes a paper in each of eight major categories of business and accounting research. These awards are selected from more than 500 submitted papers. The award was presented at the annual meeting of the Midwest Business Administration Association which was held in Chicago on March 24-26.

Jim Barnes, professor of comparative literature, had a poem, "Four Things Choctaw," reprinted in Signing of Earth: A Native American Anthology published in San Francisco by the Nature Company. The poem first appeared in The Nation in 1977. He is scheduled to give readings of his new work at Salem College, Fitchburg State College and Central Connecticut State University during the last week of April.

Patricia S. Burton, assistant professor of philosophy, presented a paper titled "The Policeman's Beard is Half-Deconstructed: Augustine meets Racter" at the 14th Annual Medieval Forum in Plymouth, N.H., on April 16-17. While at the forum, she also served as moderator for a session on the philosophical writings of St. Thomas Aquinas and Averroes (Abu al-Walid Muhammad Ibn Ahmad Ibn Rushd.)

Adam Cleary, senior studio art-painting major, was successfully juried into the national "2 x 2 Miniature Show" sponsored by the Printmaking Council of New Jersey held in Somerville, N.J. Of his two entries accepted, one received an award of distinction.

David Connor, assistant professor of psychology, recently presented a paper titled "A Longitudinal Study of Mother-Child Scolding Behaviors During Informal Problem-Solving Interactions" at the annual meeting for the Society for Research in Child Development, held March 25-28 in New Orleans.

Julie Darmon, senior marketing major, was selected for a summer internship at Goedecke AG, a pharmaceutical company in Freiburg, Germany.

Keith Doubt, assistant professor of sociology, recently organized and moderated a session titled "Toward a Sociology of Schizophrenia" at the Midwest Sociological Society meetings in Chicago.

Matt Eichor, justice systems director, was invited to participate in a career day activity at St. Francis Borgia Regional High School in Washington, Mo.

Russell Guyver, assistant professor of music, gave the premiere performance of Monatna Music: Fantasy on a Chorale Tune for Violin and Viola by David Maslanka at Montana State University on April 18.

James A. Harmon, associate professor of humanities and allied arts, has been chosen as a participant in the 1993 National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Seminar, "Narrative and Synthesis in Medieval Book Illumination." The seminar will be held at Cornell University from June 20 to Aug. 6.

Maureen Leonard, senior psychology major, presented a paper titled "Ethnography, Undergraduate Research, and Schizophrenia" at the Midwest Sociological Society Meetings in Chicago. The presentation described the research project of several Northeast undergraduates at Country Side Rehabilitation Center in Kirkville.

Huping Ling, assistant professor of history, had an article titled "Surviving on the Gold Mountain: A Review of Resources about Chinese American Women" accepted by The History Teacher for the May 1993 issue.

Jerry Mayhew professor of exercise science, and Fontaine Piper, associate professor of exercise science, had their article titled "Relationships of Body Dimensions to Strength Performance in Novice Adolescent Male Powerlifters" accepted for publication in Pediatric Exercise Science. Their article, co-written by John Ware, instructor of exercise science, titled "Anthropometric Correlates with Strength Performance Among Resistance Trained Athletes" was accepted for publication in the Journal of Sports Medicine and Physical Fitness.

Lori Nix, senior photography/art history major, and Kimberly Tomes, senior studio art-painting major, have been nationally recognized in the 1993 Contemporary Arts Juried Exhibition held at the Center for Contemporary Arts in St. Louis. The competition focused on collaborative works where two or more individuals created each artwork. The Nix/Tomes team accounted for two of the 15 accepted from the 78 national submissions.

Keith Pavlischek, assistant college professor of Missouri North Residential College, presented his paper titled "How to be an Anti-Liberal without Being a Communitarian: The Thomistic Doctrine of Subsidiarity and the Neo-Calvinist Understanding of Sphere Sovereignty" at the annual meeting of the Southwestern Political Science Association on March 19. The paper was part of a political theory panel on Liberalism and Religion in America.

Sean Stalling, senior sociology major, recently took second place in the Belford V. Lawson oratorical competition held in Chicago. The competition was sponsored by the national fraternity Alpha Phi Alpha, and Stalling's lecture "How to Revitalize the Entrepreneurial Spirit in the African-American Community," won a $250 scholarship.

Tim Thomas, a sophomore German major, was a quarterfinalist at the American Forensics Association National Individual Events Tournament held at Rice University in Houston. Tracy Christeson, sophomore, also competed in the events of Prose, Dramatic, and Prose Oral Interpretation. This is the first time that an NMSU student has made it into elimination rounds at this tournament, which is considered to be the toughest individual events tournament in the nation. Thomas and Christeson's coach was Tina Frederickson, individual event speech coach.

David Cratis Williams, associate professor of speech communication, presented a paper titled "Postmodernism and the 'Rhetorical Condition'" at the combined meetings of the Southern States Communication Association and the Central States Communication Association in Lexington, Ken. April 14-18. Williams upheld the affirmative in a public debate on the topic: "Resolved: That Kenneth Burke Should be Understood as Postmodern." He also served as program respondent on a panel titled "Rhetorical Adjustments: Studies of the Cold War and Nazi Germany."

Laura Zimmer-Tamakoshi, assistant professor of anthropology, was invited by the Society for Cultural Anthropology to give a session on "The Politics of Culture in the Pacific."

The first Gold Medal Concerto-Aria Competition Finalist Grand winners are for the instrumental category, Jeremy Burke (alto saxophone), graduate student in music, and for the vocal category, Scott Piper (tenor), senior music and Spanish major.

The Student Senate documents Continuing a Renaissance: Student Senate's Vision for the Future of the University and Survey to Predict How Students Would Use More Free Electives were cited in the March 1993 issue of the journal Resources in Higher Education and will be distributed across the nation on microform by the ERIC Clearinghouse on Higher Education.

Notes

The first gathering of Girls State alumnae is scheduled for April 28 at 7 p.m. in Science Hall 220. If you attended an American Legion Auxiliary sponsored by Girls State, you are encouraged to attend. Girls State participants from any state or year are invited. For details contact Dana at 627-0706 or Patty at 627-7287 or 627-3321.

Student Handbooks are available for returning off-campus students in the CAOC between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday-Friday. For on-campus students, handbooks will be delivered to campus mailboxes. For divisions and offices, the CAOC will deliver handbooks in early May after distribution to returning students.

The Barnett Hall computer lab is now equipped with eight new Macintosh IIsi systems for student use. These are equipped with Microsoft Word, Excel, Wordperfect and Pagemaker.

Due to the large quantity of recyclable materials generated during the final weeks of the semester, the NMSU recycling program asks for cooperation in several aspects to speed the handling of materials. Staples and paper clips should be removed from paper. Different materials should be sorted into paper, glass, aluminum, cardboard and newspaper. Trash should be removed and placed in trash containers. Paper and newspaper should be placed in cardboard boxes for pick up, and all materials should be taken to the pick-up location in each building. A small number of boxes will be available.

Homecoming representative meetings are held weekly on Thursdays at 9 p.m. in Ophelia Parrish 214. Attendance at these meetings affects Chairman's Cup points. Any questions about Homecoming may be directed to Jena Carter in the CAOC at 785-4222.

The Writing Center is still accepting applications for fall 1993 writing consultants and peer readers. Applications are in the Writing Center, McClain Hall 303. For more information, call 785-4484.

The Center for Service-Learning will have seminars for students who have volunteered for public service and desire to have that service credited to their record. These students should attend one of these reflective seminars, which are scheduled for April 21 from 6:30-7 p.m. in the SUB Tangerine Room, April 22 from 8:30-9 p.m. in the SUB 4, and April 26 from 6-7 p.m. in the SUB 2. Students should call 785-4265 or 785-4572 to reserve a place in the seminar.

Applications for the optional early retirement program with supplemental payments to begin next year and continue for up to three years should be filed by April 30, 1993. For more information, contact the President's office, McClain Hall 200.

Education students and graduates: the 1993 vacancy report from the Association for School, College and University Staffing, Inc., and information on Missouri Western State College's Teacher Placement Day are available in the educational career opportunities hot file in the CPC.

into the residence hall computer labs. In addition to this, eight Macintosh computers have been added to the computer lab in Barnett Hall. A computer lab will go into the library, so that students can have access to the lab at late hours. This lab will be equipped with eight IBM and eight Macintosh computers and laser printers and will be expanded to include at least 20 systems. This should be finished by the end of the summer.

The upgrade of the academic (MUSIC and LUIS) computers is also scheduled for this summer. Northeast will replace the mainframe computer, tying LUIS and MUSIC into one system. The new computer will have three times as much memory and will be much faster. Rector said the current system is too slow, sometimes delaying 25 or 30 seconds. "It's just frustrating during peak periods," he said, "after every command it just sits and sits."

New software to handle the University's financial system, including payroll, accounts payable, purchasing, and the University budget will be selected this summer, but the switch will take place gradually over the next year or two. Other projects, such as a fiber optic campus backbone and building wiring project are scheduled for the summer of 1994.

The EDUCOM consultants recommended that the current planning process for computing be expanded and integrated into the University's overall planning process. They also recommended developing a better system of communication among various levels of the user support. Numerous recommendations for specific improvements were also included in the report; the Instructional Services Committee will be largely responsible for deciding which ones to act upon.
