Student-Athletes Win National Championships

Student-athletes from swimming, wrestling and track and field recently received national recognition for their efforts.

The women's swimming team, under the direction of head coach Colleen Murphy, brought home the 2004 Division II title for the fourth consecutive year. The team competed at the NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships held March 10-13 in Buffalo, N.Y., and outscored Drury to win the title 641-561.

Krista Pray, senior psychology major from Naperville, Ill.; Michaela Osborn, junior communication major from Tipton, Iowa; and Christina Blose, junior psychology major from Cape Girardeau, Mo.; were members of last year's national championship 200-yard medley relay team and took the title again this season, along with Whitney Jensen, sophomore exercise science major from Grinnell, Iowa.

Osborn also repeated as a national champion in the 400-yard medley relay, but was teamed up with Diana Betsworth, junior exercise science major from East Moline, Ill., Pray and Meredith Rocha, sophomore nursing major from Whitehouse, Texas, this year, as the group won and broke Truman's own NCAA record in the process.

The 800-yard freestyle relay team of Betsworth, Rocha, Sarah Dance, senior exercise science major from Lincoln, Neb., and Katie May, senior communication major from Westmont, Ill., also won a national title.

Lija Kaleps-Clark, sophomore history major from Westerville, Ohio, brought home the only individual national crown, winning the 200-yard backstroke.

Merrick Meyer, junior business administration major from St. Peters, Mo., became the second ever Truman national champion wrestler, and the school's first in 36 years, when he took the NCAA Division II title at 141 pounds. The championships were held March 12-13 in Mankato, Minn. He was the national runner-up at 141 pounds a year ago. David Schutter is the head wrestling coach.

Christina Winkler, senior biology major from High Ridge, Mo., was the lone Bulldog competing in the NCAA Division II Indoor Track and Field Championships. She finished with a second-place finish in the 60-meter hurdles. The championships were held March 12-13 in Boston. John Cochrane is the head women's cross country and track and field coach.

Samuel and Tenny Place Fifth in Nation at National Parliamentary Tournament of Excellence

Tan Samuel, junior computer science major from Pueblo, Colo., and Marie Tenny, junior psychology major from Villa Ridge, Mo., placed fifth March 13-14, in the first of three national championship tournaments attended by the Forensic Union, the National Parliamentary Tournament of Excellence. This is the fourth year Truman has had teams eligible to compete at the tournament, but the first year Truman has reached elimination rounds of the prestigious competition. In addition, Samuel was ranked fourth best speaker and Tenny sixth. The tournament was held at the University of California-Berkeley.

The NPTE is one of two national championship tournaments in parliamentary debate, the second being the National Parliamentary Debate Association (NPDA) national tournament.

Truman has ranked in the top-ten in various national debate rankings since its first national championship in 2000.

Visiting Artist Series Presents Maia Quartet

The Visiting Artist Series in the Music Department

is sponsoring a concert by the string quartet, Maia Quartet, at 3 p.m., March 28, in the Ophelia Parrish Performance Hall. This event is free and open to the public.

The Maia Quartet is a world-class ensemble that has performed extensively to outstanding reviews. Since its formation in 1990, it has established itself as an ensemble of great innovation and versatility. The Maia Quartet has collaborated with many leading chamber musicians of our time and is currently the Quartet-in-Residence at the University of Iowa.

The concert will be followed by a master class beginning at about 5 p.m. that features Truman's own student quartet, The President's Quartet.

For more information, contact David McKamie at 785.4405.

Truman Offers Online Courses During 2004 Summer Session

The University is experimenting with online education this summer by offering seven online courses (five of them offered for the first time in the online mode) as part of the 2004 Summer Session. These courses provide students the convenience of completing coursework from off-campus locations, while at the same time maintaining student status at Truman for financial aid consideration, enrollment verification and applicability of credit (these courses are the equivalent of regularly offered Truman courses in terms of applicability to degree requirements).

Online courses offered this summer are: ED 389 WE/Foundations of Education; MUSI 204 Perspectives in Music: Art Music; HPP 200 Medical Terminology; JINS 327 WE/Illuminations; LIB 111 Use of Information Resources; HIST 298 American Institutional History; and PSYC 166 WE/General Psychology.

Online courses are listed in the 2004 Summer Schedule of Classes. Full descriptions of online courses are available at the Registrar's Web site <http://registrar.truman.edu>.

Summer registration began March 22.

Accreditation Self-Study Subcommittee to Focus on Mission and Integrity

As reported last semester, Truman State University will host a team of evaluators from The Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools (HLC) from Jan. 31-Feb. 2, 2005. By December 2004, the University must submit an evaluative written report to the HLC to support the visit. In addition to a steering committee, five subcommittees consisting of faculty, staff and students currently are engaged in a comprehensive self-study process. Each subcommittee has been charged to analyze and evaluate the University's documents, policies and practices against one of five criteria.

This article is the first of several articles describing the subcommittees. The first criterion is Mission and Integrity.

The portion of the self-study focused on Mission and Integrity studies how Truman's mission as a public liberal arts and sciences university is communicated to stakeholders both within and outside of the institution, how well and how pervasively the mission is understood by the various constituencies, and how awareness of mission affects procedural and policy decisions at all levels.

Integrity refers to the coherence of all that we do, and the consistency of each portion of our operations with the mission. It also has an ethical meaning of transparency, fairness and accountability in all dealings, whether communicating with the public, responding to grievances, or stewardship of public resources and the high responsibility of educating the young. The committee studies the degree to which communication structures are kept open, and decision-making is collaborative to whatever degree is possible and appropriate.

The subcommittee is chaired by Adam Brooke Davis, associate professor of English, and includes Dale Blesz, assistant professor of special education; Mark Campbell, associate professor of agricultural science; Debra Cartwright, associate professor of business administration; Jennifer Eldridge Houser, assistant professor of health; Sally Detweiler, EEO/Gender Equity Officer; Warren Gooch, professor of music; Tony Vazzana, associate professor of mathematics; Melanee Crist, international student adviser; John Quinn, associate professor of political science, and a student representative, Ruth Sabei, sophomore biology major from Tanzania.

Global Issues Colloquium

7-9 p.m. • April 1 • SUB Alumni Room • Paul Wallace will present

For more information, contact Hena Ahmad at 785.6017 or at hahmad@truman.edu.

Notables

Adam Brooke Davis, associate professor of English, has written an invited chapter for a forthcoming volume in the Modern Languages Association's "Approaches to Teaching" series, Chaucer: Troilus & Criseide and the Minor Poems; the essay is "Diverse Folk Divergely They Seyde: Teaching Chaucer to Non-majors."

Taner Edis, assistant professor of physics, will visit the University of Tulsa, Okla., on March 23, to give a talk based on his book,

"The Ghost in the Universe."

Karon Speckman, associate professor of communication-journalism, has been named a fellow of the American Society of Newspaper Editors Institute for Journalism Excellence. She will attend an American Press Institute seminar in Reston, Va., and then have a summer newspaper residency with the Lawrence, Mass., Eagle-Tribune, winner of the 2003 Pulitzer Prize for breaking news.

Educator of the Year Committee Selects 12 Semi-Finalists

Truman State University's Educator of the Year committee has announced 12 semi-finalists from its field of nominated professors.

Seventeen professors were nominated by their students. They were then asked to submit an essay, given a prompt, and a sample syllabus. The 12 semi-finalists were selected based on the nomination form submitted by the student, the essay and sample syllabus. They include Jon Beck, assistant professor of computer science; Joseph Benevento, professor of English; Steven Chappell, assistant professor of communication; Sally Cook, assistant professor of linguistics; José Herrera, associate professor of biology; John Ishiyama, professor of political science; Jennifer Jesse, assistant professor of philosophy and religion; Matthew Killmeier, assistant professor of communication; Wendy Miner, assistant professor of education; Russell Nelson, associate professor of art; Jeffrey Vittengl, assistant professor of psychology; and Sally West, associate professor of history.

The committee will distribute questionnaires in the semi-finalists' classes March 16-26. This information will be used to help select six finalists March 28. The committee will then observe the finalists' classes and interview the finalists before selecting the Educator of the Year.

The 2004 Educator of the Year will be announced at the banquet at 6 p.m., April 14, in the Student Union Building Georgian Room.

The committee is comprised of representatives from the sponsoring organizations: Student Senate, Pershing Society, Phi Eta Sigma and Phi Kappa Phi.
