UNIVERSITY CHARTERED student organizations can apply for use of the Baldwin Auditorium on available dates beginning at 9 a.m. Tuesday in 104 Baldwin Hall. Applications should include organization name, a phone number, dates preferred and secondary dates, and what the organization will use the auditorium for. Selection will be made principally on a first-come, first-serve basis. One usage by a group will be accepted at a time. New requests can be submitted for other uses after the first request is cleared.

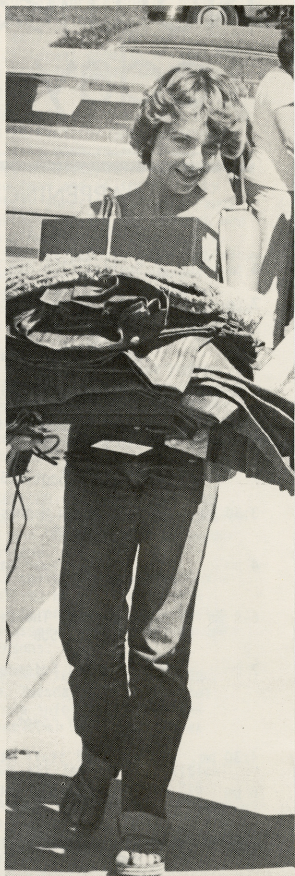

THE RESIDENCE HALL ASSOCIATION is meeting at 8:30 p.m. today in the Ryle Hall music lounge. Interested people are welcome to attend.

Back to school

Classes are starting, footballs and Frisbees are flying through the air, and people are getting together to renew old acquaintances and start new ones. With an estimated 1,625 first-time freshmen on campus this fall, there will be a lot of people getting accustomed to the University. Although some colleges are recording a decrease in enrollment, NMSU has an increase this year. There may be a new record number of students when all the figures are in. There are more first-time freshmen, more transfer students and more "stop-outs" re-entering.

Teresa Gosselin, Lori Watts and Becky Bittle, transfer students, were introduced to President McClain at the new student orientation picnic Aug. 24. The picnic has been a regular part of fall activities at the University for several years. It is designed to give new students a chance to get acquainted with faculty, staff and administration members.

Freshmen Linda Bausell and Laura... who didn't have to get acquainted year. They are from the same home town and decided to room together during the first year of college. They had all of the necessities for their room in Centennial Hall: a stereo, a floor pillow.
