Cyclists Must Follow Safety Guidelines

Due to several recent bike accidents, the Department of Public Safety would like to remind all cyclists of the campus safety guidelines.

- Anyone operating a bicycle must obey the same traffic control regulations that apply to cars and motorcycles, such as stopping for stop signs and riding in the right-hand portion of the roadway.
- When cycling on the roadway bicycles must be ridden with the flow of traffic and not against it. Bicyclists must also obey one-way streets designations and are subject to all traffic laws.
- Bicycles ridden after dark must be equipped with a headlight, large red reflector on the rear and white or amber pedal and spoke reflector.
- Bicycles parked on campus must be left in bicycle racks, which are provided in locations outside of most University buildings. Bikes are not to be left in buildings, entrances, ramps or any other hazardous location. They should not be attached to any trees or light poles. Bicycles that are illegally parked are subject to parking tickets and/or confiscation by the Department of Public Safety.
- Bicycles should be ridden on streets, not on sidewalks, lawns or University-maintained parkways.
- Students are strongly encouraged to register their bikes with DPS. Registration permits are issued free of charge.

Truman supports the use of bicycles as a means of transportation, but ultimately the safety of all campus pedestrians is of first priority. More information on biking policies may be found at police.truman.edu/parkingservices/parkServ.asp.

Europe in Transition Program Now Accepting Applications for Spring Trip

Informational meetings for Truman's Europe in Transition Program will take place Nov. 26, 27 and 28 at 4:30 p.m. in Violette Hall 1400.

The Europe in Transition Program combines study and field trips using the setting of Europe, focusing on the examination of current issues and problems in the European Union, the economy, and the political and social climate.

The course is scheduled for May 16-June 2, 2013. The itinerary includes stops in Prague, Czech Republic (May 16-19); Vienna, Austria (May 20-21); Budapest, Hungary (May 22-23); Rome, Italy (May 24-27); Florence, Italy (May 28-30); and Venice, Italy (May 31-June 2).

Students in good standing are eligible to participate and will be admitted to the program in the order in which the applications are received. The deadline for program application is Jan. 18. To receive six credit hours students must attend pre-travel classes and lectures, must keep a journal during the overseas experience and must complete a paper after returning.

For more information, contact Jason Lin at jlin@truman.edu, Keith Harrison at kharris@truman.edu or go online to business.truman.edu/students/Europe7.asp.

Missouri Hall of Fame Honors Past Bulldogs

Former Bulldog standouts will have the chance to re-live their athletic achievements at the Missouri Sports Hall of Fame induction ceremony set to take place at 6 p.m. Dec. 5 in the Student Union Building Georgian Rooms.

Among the honorees, four individuals have former or current ties to the University. Award-winners include: Shane Cavanah, member of the Bulldog football team in the 1960s and state-title-winning high school football coach; Gerald "Shag" Grossnickle, Truman's all-MIAA fullback known for his diligent work as one of northeast Missouri's top conservationists; Dr. John Bailey, a regionally recognized orthopedic surgeon and the University's acting team physician since 1997; Ben Pitney, assistant men's basketball coach from 1971-1994 and current director of Athletics for Hannibal-LaGrange College.

Acknowledgement will also be given to Truman's 1969, 1970 and 1971 football teams. Ranked as underdogs in the conference, the program went on to win three straight MIAA championships under the leadership of coach Russ Sloan.

The Missouri Sports Hall of Fame, established in 1994, works to honor athletes from across the state who have proven themselves to be an inspiration to up-and-coming athletes as well as showing a distinct expertise in their respective sport(s). Tickets for the event are $75 and can be purchased by calling the Missouri Sports Hall of Fame at 417.889.3100.

ITS Banner Training Courses Continue in the Spring

This spring IT Services will continue to offer monthly Banner training covering "Banner Navigation Basics and Review" and "Running Reports in Banner." A limited number of fall training courses are still open as well.

The navigation class reviews the basics of moving around in the Banner forms with some tips and tricks for using the various form types and searching for information. While the "Running Reports in Banner" class concentrates on the report running process and demonstrates how to get the data into usable electronic format, including hands-on report running and importing delimited data into Excel.

Both classes are appropriate for new users seeking to learn more about the programs and occasional users looking for a refresher.

IT Services is also offering a new session called "Banner Reporting Review for Academic Departments," which will discuss the Banner reports available to various academic schools and departments.

To register for any of the Banner training sessions, go to eventmanager.truman.edu, click "Login" and enter a Truman Network username/password. Select "View Events or Register for an Event" then select the "Department is" drop down and choose "Information Technology Services." Click "Search" and select the desired session from the list of IT classes.

Alum to Discuss Art Museum Exhibition Nov. 29

Professor Chris Naffziger will host an art history forum entitled "You Spent How Many Years Working on This? Reflections on Mounting a Major Renaissance Painting and Drawing Exhibition" from 4:15-5:30 p.m. Nov. 29 in Ophelia Parrish 2210.

Naffziger's talk will focus on his contributions to the major exhibition currently on display at the St. Louis Art Museum. The display features more than 130 paintings and drawings by sixteenth century Italian artist Federico Barocci. Following the conclusion of its time in St. Louis the exhibition will travel to the National Gallery in London for display.

The exhibition in St. Louis will be the first showing in the United States especially devoted to Barocci's paintings and drawings. The artist is considered by many art enthusiasts to be one of the great colorists of the Renaissance era. His works are considered important precursors of Baroque-era masters like Peter Paul Rubens.

The event, sponsored by the Art Department and the University Art Gallery, is free and open to the public.

ORIENTATION LEADER APPLICATIONS NOW AVAILABLE
