Commission on Undergraduate Curriculum to Host Forums

The Commission on Undergraduate Curriculum will have two open forums in January. The first will take place from 3:30-5 p.m. Jan. 18 in the Student Union Building Alumni Room. The second will be from 4-5 p.m. Jan. 22 in the Student Union Building Conference Room.

These forums are the first that will take place during the next two years as part of the curriculum review and reform process. These first two sessions will focus primarily on what it means to be "liberally educated."

The commission welcomes all students, faculty and staff to the discussions. The purpose of the forums is to engage these three constituencies in open communication throughout the process to share perspectives and gain insight on what changes should be made.

Contact Debi Cartwright, associate professor of business administration, at dcart@truman.edu or 785.4331 for more information.

Truman State University Foundation to Award More Than $460,000 in Scholarships

The Truman State University Foundation will award more than $460,000 to Truman students in 2007-2008.

Applications for these scholarships will be available beginning Jan. 18 and are due by midnight March 1. Applications for current students can be found by going to <http://www.truman.edu> and clicking Current Students/Foundation Scholarships or log on to <http://secure.truman.edu/isupport-s/>.

In addition, the Foundation is offering

Truman State University Foundation Study Abroad Scholarships. Ten $1,500 scholarships will be awarded to students participating in faculty-led study abroad programs for summer 2007 based on financial need, statement of purpose and academic achievement.

Applications for the study abroad scholarships are now available in the Center for International Education Abroad (CIEA) office, located in Kirk Building 114. Applications are due by noon Jan. 26.

Spring Semester Physics Colloquium Begins

"Quantum Entanglement for Fun and Profit"

Michael E. Goggin, of the department of physics at Truman State University and at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, will speak on this topic.

4:30 p.m.
Jan. 17
Magruder Hall 109B

The talk will begin with fundamental concepts, such as polarization and its measurement and move to more complex concepts such as the density matrix and the quality of entanglement. The strange implications of some experiments utilizing entangled photons will also be presented. This discussion will be at the intermediate level. Refreshments will be served at 4:20 p.m.

Truman Faculty Forum

"How to Listen to Jazz"

Tim AuBuchon, assistant professor of music and director of jazz studies, will present the program.

7 p.m.
Jan. 18
Magruder Hall 1000

Jazz can often seem confusing to the novice listener. Where is the melody? Why are there so many solos? How do the musicians know when to start and stop? AuBuchon seeks to answer these and other questions.

A reception with refreshments will follow. Students, faculty, staff and the public are invited to attend.

Pieper Selected for National Research Team

Sue Pieper, assessment specialist, was recently appointed to serve on the national Voluntary System of Accountability project (VSA). The VSA is a joint effort of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AACSU) and the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges (NASULGC) and will receive funding assistance from the Lumina Foundation.

The project was initiated in response to a need for greater accountability among higher education institutions. The purpose of the VSA is to develop recommendations for how this accountability can be accomplished through the comparison of these institutions.

The project will involve three task forces and two technical work groups. Pieper will be a member of the Technical Work Group on Student Growth Outcomes. She will collaborate with academic advisers, student affairs personnel, institutional researchers, counselors and communication specialists on developing a list of student growth domains that institutions should assess. This will aid schools in identifying appropriate assessment instruments and developing procedures for administering assessments and reporting the results.

The Technical Work Group on Student Growth is scheduled to meet four times in the next seven months at the AACSU national office in Washington, D.C.

The recommendations will be completed by July 17 and sent to a commission of presidents who will make recommendations to the presidents of AACSU and the NASULGC.

Annual Student Interview Project Examines Influences on Student Engagement

The annual Student Interview Project will be conducted during the next several weeks of the semester. This year, the project addresses how faculty and staff members influence students' interest and involvement in their education.

Teams of one faculty or staff member and one student will interview approximately 100 seniors. Faculty and staff are encouraged to volunteer for this opportunity and can either arrange to interview with a student co-interviewer of their choice or be paired with one.

Formal interviews will be conducted Monday mornings and evenings, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, Thursday mornings and Saturday afternoons. A one-hour time slot normally allows for two student interviews.

The interviews are expected to conclude by mid-term break and the findings will be published for the entire University community.

Contact Jeffrey Vitengl, student interview project chair, at vitengl@truman.edu or 785.6041 for more information.

International Student Scholarships Established

Two new scholarships have been established by recent international Truman graduates through the Truman State University Foundation.

Prajwal Sharma, a May 2006 graduate, recently established The Mark Nordstrom Memorial Scholarship. An assistant professor of communication, Nordstrom was the adviser for Detours magazine and the Echo yearbook. He was known for his enthusiasm, work ethic and wonderful sense of humor. Nordstrom passed away May 13, 2006, and Sharma, former editor in chief of Detours, established this scholarship in his memory. A $1,000 scholarship will be awarded for the next four years to students based on the quality of their scholarship application and their contribution to bridging the international stereotype at the University.

Imran Jamal, a 2003 business administration and accounting graduate, established the Aminah Jamal Scholarship in honor of his mother. Mrs. Jamal has been a teacher and a great mother to three children. A $1,000 scholarship will be awarded for the next four years to assist business and accountancy international undergraduate students achieve their educational pursuits.

These scholarships are among more than 350 other scholarships now available for Truman students in 2007-2008. Applications can be found on the Foundation scholarship Web site beginning Jan. 18. Go to <http://www.truman.edu> and click on Current Students/Foundation Scholarships. For more information, e-mail bpikie@truman.edu.

Technical Director Candidate Open Forum

Students, faculty and staff are invited to meet Matthew Farwell, candidate for technical director in Information Technology Services, in an open forum from 2:30-3:15 p.m. Jan. 22 in the Student Union Building Alumni Room. Currently, Farwell is IT technical director at the Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston, Mass.

NOTABLES

Tom Capuano, professor of foreign language, co-authored an article with Richard P. Kinkade of the University of Arizona, which appears in the current issue of La Corónica: A Journal of Medieval Spanish Language, Literature and Cultural Studies (34:2). The article is titled "Los Folios Finales del MS S del Libro de Buen Amor."

Antonio Scuderi, associate professor of Italian,

Institute Seeks Shear Fellows for 21st Century Leadership Academy

Students may become Shear Fellows by attending the 21st Century Leadership Academy at the University of Missouri-St. Louis. Participants will join 36 of Missouri's top student leaders for the weeklong residential college program, May 20-25.

As Missouri's premier leadership development opportunity focused on women's public policy leadership, the 21st Century Leadership Academy encourages students to consider careers in public policy and provides leadership skills training.

The agenda includes meetings with women elected officials, government leaders and policy advocates as well as panel discussions, small group projects and skill-building opportunities. A trip to Jefferson City, Mo., is also planned, where Shear Fellows will meet with state leaders and participate in a mock legislative session.

Academy graduates are currently working in legislative and executive offices in Washington, D.C., and Jefferson City, attending law school and graduate school across the country and leading campus political groups. Last year's participants from Truman were Amber Jones, Lina Khan, Emily Kiddoo and Brianna Lennon.

Truman State University will select up to four students to attend the Academy and will cover the cost of participation.

Applicants must be currently-enrolled degree-seeking students who have expressed interest in women's public policy leadership and plan on returning to Truman for the fall 2007 semester. Students from all majors are encouraged to apply.

Applications are available at <http://registrar.truman.edu/other/shear.html> and are due Feb. 23. Contact A. Kay Anderson, registrar, at 785.4143 or aka@truman.edu for more information.

Additional information about the Academy can be found at <http://www.umsl.edu/~iwpl/>.

Media and Marketing Company Offers Summer Internships

Meredith Corporation is currently accepting applications for its 2007 Summer Internship Program.
