2001 LINDA HALL LECTURE SERIES

Dr. Chad Mohler

Nov. 15

"The Development of Science:

Progressive or Revolutionary?"

May to Deliver Phi Beta Kappa Fellows Lecture

Medical ethicist and religious scholar William F. May, the Cary M. Maguire University professor of ethics at Southern Methodist University, will deliver a Phi Beta Kappa Fellows Lecture at Truman State University titled "Contending Images of the Healer: Teacher, Parent, Technician, Fighter." The talk will take place at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 15, in the Student Union Building Alumni Room.

May is the author of "A Catalogue of Sins," "The Physician's Covenant: Images of the Healer in Medical Ethics," "The Patient's Ordeal" and "Testing the Medical Covenant: Active Euthanasia and Health Care Reform." He also founded and chaired the department of religious studies at Indiana University and served as chair of the religion department at Smith College. He is past president of the American Academy of Religions and a founding fellow of the Hastings Center, where he co-chaired its research group on death and dying. He is currently a visiting professor at Yale University.

The Phi Beta Kappa Fellows Lectureship was established in 1942 to foster the academic ideals of the Society's chapters and alumni associations and to contribute directly to the intellectual life of their campuses and communities. May's address is sponsored by the Phi Beta Kappa National Honor Society, the Beta Kappa Association of Northeastern Missouri, and Truman's Delta of Missouri Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

For more information, contact Derek Daschke, PBKA-NEMO vice president of programming, at ddaschke@truman.edu.

Mohler to Speak in Linda Hall Library Series

Chad Mohler, assistant professor of philosophy and religion, will present the sixth and final lecture of the 2001 Linda Hall Lecture Series at 5:30 p.m., Nov. 15, in the Main Reading Room at the Linda Hall Library in Kansas City, Mo. His topic will be "The Development of Science: Progressive or Revolutionary?"

The Linda Hall Library of Science and Engineering and Technology is one of the nation's leading specialty research libraries. It houses numerous major collections and reference materials and an education program that features onsite and online exhibitions, a U.S. Patent and Trademark Depository, a rare science history collection and the annual Linda Hall Lecture Series.

The 2001 Series marks the fifth year for the event and features Truman faculty from several departments. They are the first invited lecturers from a public university.

Mohler graduated in 1994 summa cum laude with his bachelor's degrees in physics and philosophy from the University of Notre Dame. In 1999, he earned his doctorate in philosophy from Princeton University. His area of specialization is epistemology, and he is competent in topics such as philosophy of science, early modern philosophy, action theory, metaphysics and logic.

The Linda Hall Lecture Series is part of several outreach programs that promote an interest in science among the general public. Linda Hall Library is located at 5109 Cherry Street and the lectures are free and open to the public. For more information, check <http://www.lindahall.org>.

Speaker Discusses Service-Learning with Education Department, Community Leaders

Kevin Swick, professor of early childhood education at the University of South Carolina and the director of Service-Learning and Teacher Education program (SLATE), recently spoke about service-learning to a foundations of education class and several Kirksville community leaders. Pete Kelly and Pat Smiser, both assistant professors of education, were each given grants to add a service-learning component to the curriculum of their classes on campus through Missouri Campus Compact Studies supported by the Kaufman Foundation.

Swick addressed service-learning and mentioned several ideas for service-learning projects.

Service-learning entails slightly more than community service. Like community service, service-learning fulfills a need in the community, but then uses that need as a foundation to examine society, the future and each other. It is a reciprocal relationship in which the service reinforces the learning and the learning reinforces and strengthens the service.

"We are a nation so busy we forget to get to know each other," Swick said. "Service-learning will bring us together by developing personal values, self-confidence, beliefs, social awareness and responsibility, and a sense for caring for others."

Community leaders were invited to speak briefly about the needs of their organizations so Truman would have an understanding of their service needs. The ultimate goal is for MAE graduates to develop leadership skills in service-learning to be used for the school districts that employ them in the future.

David Nichols, professor emeritus of music, recently discussed his new college textbook, "Musical Encounters," with President Jack Magruder. The goal of the textbook, according to Nichols, is to bring people to a new level of both understanding and enjoying music. The textbook also has an online study guide that can be accessed at <http://www.prenhall.com/nichols>.
