SERVE CENTER TO HOST NINTH ANNUAL BIG EVENT

The SERVE Center's ninth annual BIG Event is a chance for the Truman campus to give back to the Kirksville community.

This year's event is scheduled for March 21.

After great success last year, with more than 1,000 students painting, raking and cleaning up Kirksville, the SERVE Center looks forward to this year's event.

There will also be a few new additions to help make the ninth BIG event even bigger.

This year, the SERVE Center hopes to involve faculty and staff in order to make the BIG Event a more campus-wide effort.

An "after party" is also in the works to bring all the volunteers back to campus after attending their work sites.

The SERVE Center hopes that sharing experiences after the workday is over can help to create a greater sense of unity amongst the volunteers. It is also a way to thank the students, faculty and staff for participating.

Registration for the BIG Event ends March 5. Students wishing to volunteer, and community members wishing to request services, can access registration forms at <http://serve.truman.edu/bigevent/index.html>

Duke Ellington Orchestra

The Lyceum Series Concludes with the Duke Ellington Orchestra

The final presentation of the 2008-2009 Lyceum series will be the Duke Ellington Orchestra, which is set to perform at 7:30 p.m. March 17 in the Baldwin Hall Auditorium.

The music of jazz legend Duke Ellington lives on, thanks to the efforts of his grandson. Paul Mercer Ellington, conductor and musical director of the Duke Ellington Orchestra, is carrying on the musical traditions started by his grandfather almost 90 years ago.

Duke Ellington composed more than 2,000 pieces of music, including jazz classics "Take the 'A' Train," and "It Don't Mean a Thing (If It Ain't Got that Swing)."

Throughout his extensive career, Ellington's bands led the forefront of music, often performing with greats such as Billy Strayhorn, Miles Davis, Ella Fitzgerald and Tony Bennett.

In his lifetime, Ellington led various bands, from his first, assembled just after World War I, until his death in 1974. At that time, his son, Mercer Ellington, who had been serving as the group's business manager and trumpet player, took over his father's role. Mercer Ellington encouraged his son, Paul Mercer Ellington, to eventually take over the band, which he did in the late 1990s. A talented piano player in his own right, Paul Mercer Ellington currently serves as the band's conductor and musical director.

The Duke Ellington Orchestra has performed throughout the world, including New York, Cairo, New Delhi, London, Los Angeles and Chicago.

Lyceum tickets are free for all Truman students, faculty and staff. Due to the midterm break holiday, students may pick up their tickets from 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Student Activities Board Office in the Student Union Building, starting March 3. Faculty and staff may pick up their tickets from 8:30 a.m.-8 p.m. Monday through Friday at the information desk in the Student Union Building. General admission tickets will be on sale at Edna Campbell's and the Truman Business Office, McClain Hall 105, starting March 10 for the costs of $7 for adults and $4 for those 18 and under.

For more information go online to <http://lyceum.truman.edu>.

Admissions to Move to Ruth Towne Museum

Admissions Offices are scheduled to move over a midterm break to the Ruth Towne Museum and Visitors Center at 101 East Normal.

Due to the process of physically relocating the operation to another building, the Admissions Office staff will only be available on a limited basis to assist prospective students and/or the University community March 9-10. If urgent assistance is needed during that time frame, please call 660.349.7644.

In addition to the Admissions Office, the 8,600 square foot multi-purpose facility will house the Ruth Warner Towne Museum, which will open later this year.

The facility has been financed through a combination of private gifts and University funds. The naming gift was received through a $1 million bequest from Towne in December 1999. Towne retired from Truman in 1988 as professor emeritus of history and dean emeritus of graduate studies following a 36-year teaching career at Truman.

Approximately 4,000 square feet will be devoted to the Museum. The space will also serve as an educational resource and learning environment for Truman students and professors, as well as regional school-age children.

Scholarships in Mathematics and Computer Science (SMACS) Offered to Non-Majors

SMACS Incentive Scholarships of $500 for Fall 2009 are available to non-math and computer science majors who take classes in these fields.

To be eligible, a student needs to have financial need, and take math or computer science classes that do not meet a requirement in a current major.

Other requirements and the application form can be found at <http://smacs.truman.edu>.

Students interested should apply by March 27 for first consideration.

For more information contact Dana Vazzana at dvazzana@truman.edu.

Summer Classes Offered at Reduced Rate

Truman students will have the opportunity to save some money on classes this summer, as University President Darrell Krueger has approved discounting tuition by 15 percent from Spring 2009 rates.

Undergraduate summer classes, both online and on-campus, will be offered at a reduced rate. This tuition discount is designed to help students catch up, stay even or get ahead in meeting graduation requirements.

These discounted classes are particularly beneficial for students seeking a double major, taking minors or simply wanting to accelerate their progress.

Details on the new fee schedule are in the Summer Schedule of Classes.

The discount applies to undergraduate courses only during the regular summer session and excludes interim, graduate and study abroad courses and workshops.

University Counseling Services Will Use Grant Money for Suicide Prevention Training

Staff at University Counseling Services (UCS) will be receiving some additional training thanks to a grant from the state of Missouri.

Brian Krylowicz, director of UCS, was recently awarded a $2,800 grant from the Missouri Department of Mental Health as part of the Youth Suicide Prevention Initiative. Krylowicz said he plans to apply the grant to the current suicide prevention program, Question, Persuade, Refer (QPR), by funding training for two counselors at UCS and two faculty or staff members allowing them to become certified instructors. Currently, only two staff members at UCS are trained as certified instructors of QPR.

The QPR program is designed to help educate people about what to do if they come across someone that is suicidal and how to be more comfortable helping in these situations.

With this grant, Krylowicz said he hopes that QPR's suicide prevention message will reach more students on campus and aid in preventing suicides of those connected to Truman.

The focus of this effort is to overcome the regularity of suicidal thoughts on college campuses. In 2008, the Missouri College Health Behavior Survey found 15.5 percent of Truman students experienced suicidal thoughts in the previous year.

Truman Forensics Maintains Decade-Long Streak of State Titles

Members of the Truman Forensic Union maintained a long streak of success at the Missouri Association of Forensic Activities State Championships (MAFA) Feb. 20-21 at Metropolitan Community College-Longview, in Lee's Summit, Mo.

The weekend's results maintain a decade-long streak of winning one or more state titles at the event. Truman won the state championship in debate sweepstakes, placed third in individual events sweepstakes and second in the overall category.

In addition to the championship in debate, junior Susan Presley of Austin, Texas captured the title in after dinner speaking, while freshman Erin Williamson of Kansas City, Mo., captured the state championship in rhetorical criticism.

In total, eight new events were qualified for the National Forensic Association National Championship Tournament in April.

Debate competitors also amassed an impressive number of awards with freshman Christian Johns of Carthage, Mo., reaching the final round of Lincoln-Douglas debate, taking second. Johns and her partner, junior Sarah Backhaus of Liberty, Mo., reached semifinals of the open parliamentary debate division, as did senior Christopher Girouard of Chesterfield, Mo., and junior Mark Buchheit of Carthage, Mo. Backhaus also reached the quarterfinals of the Lincoln-Douglas division.

This concludes the invitational/qualification series of the forensics season. Students will travel next to the National Parliamentary Debate Association Championships, March 25-31, in Stockton, Calif., and the National Forensic Association Championships, April 15-21, in Springfield, Mo.

The Truman Forensic Union is open to any interested student, regardless of major. No previous experience in interscholastic or intercollegiate forensics is necessary. Students interested in competing for the 2009-2010 academic year should contact the director, Kevin Minch, at kminch@truman.edu or 785.5677.

FREE APPLICATION FOR FEDERAL STUDENT AID

All students are encouraged to file the 2009-2010 Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) located at <http://www.fafsa.edu.gov>.
