Benteles Named Alumni of the Year

This year two Northeast graduates will be honored as Alumni of the Year. Raymond F. Bentele and Mary E. Cox Bentele, both 1960 graduates of Northeast, have been chosen to receive the award.

The Benteles will receive their award at the All-Alumni Banquet during Homecoming week, 7 p.m. Oct. 2 in the SUB Georgian Room. Banquet tickets are available for $10 in the Alumni/Development Office, McClain Hall 106.

Originally from Macon, Mo., Raymond Bentele is the president and chief executive officer of Mallinkrodt Inc., and senior vice president of International Minerals & Chemical Corp. His wife, Mary, is originally from Kirksville. They currently reside in St. Louis. The couple has three children, Daniel, Denise and Douglas.

While at Northeast, Ray, an accounting major, was a member of the Newman Club

Northeast's 125th: Unger's Mural

In 1976, the 120-foot mural on the third floor of the Student Union Building was added to the beautiful decor of the campus. The late Dr. William Unger, professor emeritus of art, painted the mural as part of the University's celebration of the Bicentennial.

The mural, painted in the ancient media of egg tempera, is a compilation of several murals by the late Thomas Hart Benton, Missouri's most noted painter. The first section of the mural revolves around our country's birth and western expansion. The second section is more regionalistic in nature, relating mainly to Missouri's history. This section is taken almost exclusively from the Statehouse murals in Jefferson City. In the final section, taken from a Benton mural in Massachusetts, Unger sums up the American story by showing a young son leaving his farm home for a future elsewhere.

Unger was born in Vienna, Austria, and came to this country in 1954. He later joined the Art Extension Department at the University of Wisconsin and began to put on successful exhibitions of his work.

When asked how he came to teach at Northeast Unger replied, "One summer I received a letter asking me to come and teach studio classes for that session. When the course was over, the students circulated a petition asking that I come back and teach permanently. In 1960 I joined the faculty."

In addition to teaching, Unger worked as a free-lance artist and portrait painter. His works were exhibited in various galleries and museums throughout the world: Germany, Switzerland, Netherlands, Italy and Venezuela, to name a few. His works were also shown in almost every Austrian museum, including the Albertino, a famous graphic arts museum in Vienna.

His portrait credits include commissions to paint the daughter of the King of Afghanistan while she was in Paris, a portrait of the late Winston Churchill for the headquarters of the Conservative Party, the wife of the president of the Sassoon banker dynasty in England, and a series of other actors, politicians, and persons in cultural and public prominence.

In 1972, Unger retired from Northeast to pursue his own artwork. He died in 1980.

The Towne Bells

A worker prepares to hang the bells donated by Ruth Towne, professor emeritus of history and dean emeritus of graduate studies, in the Pickler Memorial Library bell tower, Sept. 24. Towne made the donation in honor of her parents, Frank Warner Towne and Mary E. Towne.

A formal dedication of the Towne Bells and Carillon will be held at 4 p.m., Oct. 16. All students, faculty and staff are invited to attend.

Commission on Community Meets

The University's Commission on Community met for the first time this semester on Sept. 24. According to Commission chair Maria Di Stefano, associate professor of physics, the main items covered were the review of the charge given to the group last spring by President Russell Warren and discussion of a Commission on Community Speaker's Series.

President Warren's charge to the commission reads, "Since arriving on campus in

African-American Art Exhibition

An African-American art exhibition titled "We Are One" will be on display Oct. 2-6 in the Ophelia Parrish Art Gallery. The display is sponsored by the Division of Fine Arts in conjunction with Minority Services.

The exhibit contains works of artists Ann L. Carter and Leonard Hinds. Dwyane Smith, organizer of the event and assistant director of admission, says the title, "We Are One," acts as an explanation for bringing the diversity of these two artists together to form one exhibit. Both artists' works depict all aspects of African-American life: rural, urban, spiritual, young and old.

Carter has taught English as a second language around the world and is currently an instructor at Kansas State University. Her works have been displayed and have won various awards in a variety of shows.

Hinds, a native of St. Louis, is a self-taught artist. In the past six years his works have been displayed in various shows and galleries in Missouri and Illinois.

A reception for Hinds will conclude the exhibition on Oct. 6 at 7 p.m. The reception and the exhibit are free and open to the public.

and Sigma Tau Gamma, and a Student Mentor. Mary, a business education major with a physical education minor, was a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha.

Ray Bentele launched into the business world immediately out of college as a certified public accountant for a major CPA firm. In 1965, he joined a savings and loan association as treasurer and controller. Two years later, he joined Mallinckrodt as a financial analyst. He has held several positions at Mallinckrodt including controller, vice president for financial administration, vice president for international group, senior vice president and group executive for international group and chief operating officer. He has been president and director since 1978.

Ray attributes his business success to the team he and his wife have created. "What I have achieved is due in large measure to Mary's help, support, participation, encouragement and understanding; so it really is a 'we' experience," Ray said.

Mary has taught at schools in Pleasant Plains, Ill., Springfield, Ill., and St. Louis. She is active in supporting women's rights and helping with their organizations and causes. Mary is also involved with Cancer Society fund raising and the St. Louis Symphony Society.

Ray and Mary are also active in several civic organizations in the St. Louis area. Both are members of Northeast's John R. Kirk Society, and Ray was recently appointed to the Washington University Board of Trustees.

This past spring, Ray announced a $50,000 pledge to the University by Mallinckrodt in support of undergraduate science research. The gift, which will come in installments over three years, is designated to support equipment needs for electrochemical analysis and stipends to underwrite special summer research for faculty and highly-talented students.

To be considered for the Alumnus of the Year award, the alumnus must have contributed to the NMSU Development Fund, given his/her time to the University, provided the University with support through service or personal resources, as well as having demonstrated commendable personal achievement or community service. This is the second year for the award.

University Counseling Services Undergoes Expansion

University Counseling Services has expanded its available programs. In the past, the university has contracted the services of off-campus counselors in the Kirksville area. Starting this fall, on-campus services are being provided.

Clydia Case, coordinator of counseling services, joined the staff a year ago. Part of her role was to assess what kind of services the campus required. Through her interaction with students, faculty and the administration she recommended the establishment of an on-campus counseling service.

In addition to acquiring a new facility for University Counseling Services, 202 E. Patterson (directly west of Grim Hall), the office has increased its staff. Three new counselors have been hired: Debra Crisp, David Ream, and Carol O'Saben. All three have experience counseling in a university setting and are new to Kirksville.

Case believes that this on-campus service will benefit students by being more visible and accessible. She also states that it will allow the center to expand its role within the university "beyond one-to-one or group counseling activities.

We [the center] have a very significant role to play in outreach programs, presentations, workshops, seminars, training, etc., as well as a consultative role with faculty, staff, and students," Case said. This consultative role she explains as "... an informal needs assessment" allows the center to "keep a hand on the student pulse" in order to know what is needed.

Case says she doesn't view the counseling center as fulfilling the role of long-term therapy. She believes students are concerned about more developmental problems, and therefore, believes the center plays the part of an educator in how to get through and get past the rough spots of collegiate life.

A few examples of the new programs that have evolved from the expansion include a discussion series titled "Lunch and Learn on the Lawn," a series of group therapy sessions, and workshops.

The discussion series is intended as an informal means for students to come together and talk about non-academic issues and concerns. Topics for discussion range from stress-management to handling long-distance relationships.

The therapy groups are designed to address typical issues affecting students through interpersonal communication. The workshops are of a more educational nature and last between four and six weeks. Case hopes that these types of programs will "de-mystify" counseling and will help students think of the center as a resource for anyone.

Student involvement in the center isn't limited to the receiving end. In fall 1991, Counseling Services recruited 11 students to undergo training in sexual assault awareness and prevention. These students are now peer-educators in the program known as S.T.E.P., Students Together Educating Peers, which provides information to small and large groups about sexual assault. S.T.E.P. hopes to expand its curriculum to include other pertinent social issues such as alcohol and drug abuse.

To contact University Counseling Services or to receive further information about any of these programs, call 785-4014 or visit the center. All services are free of charge to students.

July 1990, I have stressed the idea of community. I believe we have made significant progress in developing a more cohesive sense of community in that time. However, I also recognize the complex issues which tend to arise on a college campus and in society at large which, when left unattended, often serve to be divisive in nature rather than unifying.

It is for this long-range purpose that I am appointing this commission and providing it with the charge of reviewing issues on campus and, in a few instances off campus, making recommendations which will help create a climate on campus which respects diversity and at the same time encourages a true sense of community. I am asking the commission to consider individual differences in ethnicity, race, gender, age, and physical abilities in order to address how each might positively impact all members of our community, with acceptance of the fact that each of us is a teacher and each can learn from others who are different from ourselves. Thus, we want to make recommendations which benefit all. There may be instances when we conclude that an individual group has a special need that must be addressed separately from all other groups, but let us agree to refer those instances to another committee at another time. This is a commission on community."

This year's commission members include David Harsfield, assistant professor of political science; Dennis Leavens, assistant professor of English; Fontaine Piper, associate professor of exercise science; Melissa Rose, assistant professor of music; Pyung Han, associate professor of business administration; Lynne Morley, head of the Division of Math and Computer Science; Dale Schenewerk, executive assistant to the president; Ave Alvarado, director of Minority Services; Susie Bair, associate athletic director; Sean Stalling, a junior sociology/anthropology major; Jenny Reilly, a sophomore pre-business administration major; Darshan Desiva, a senior economics major; Darrin Osborne, a senior political science/pre-law major; sophomore Nyasha Nyamampfene; Matthew Barnes, a junior health major; Tim Scherrer, facilities supervisor; Jackie Kelly, nursing program secretary; Bob Irvin, Kirksville city manager; Harriet Beard, Beard's Decorating Center.

President Warren, Vice President for Academic Affairs Jack Magruder and Dean of Students Ronnie Nichols are ex-officio members of the Commission.

The Commission is in the process of organizing a Speaker's Series which should be announced later this semester or early in the spring semester. The group will meet throughout the fall semester from 4:30-6 p.m. in Violette Hall 151. Upcoming meetings are scheduled for Oct. 15, Oct. 29, Nov. 12, Dec. 3 and Dec. 10. The Commission will present a report to President Warren next April.

Notables

The Chariton Review, Northeast literary magazine, was featured in the September issue of the St. Louis Literary Calendar published by Washington University, St. Louis. The calendar profiled various literary magazines in the area.

Karen Hirsch, assistant professor of education, and David Wohlers, assistant professor of chemistry, working with other disabled members of the Kirksville community, have started Rural Advocates for Independent Living (RAIL). RAIL is a nonprofit, consumer-controlled organization whose purpose is to provide information, peer support and advocacy for disabled individuals in Northeast Missouri. As of August 1992, Hirsch serves as the president, and Wohlers serves as the treasurer of the RAIL board of directors.

Thomas Hueber, assistant professor of music, was one of 12 voice teachers chosen nationwide to participate in the Second Annual Intern Program for Young Voice Teachers sponsored by the National Association of Teachers of Singing this past summer.

Steven H. Klein, associate professor of accounting, appears on the Thursday editions of "Heartland Live," a news magazine show televised by KTVO Channel 3 at 5-5:30 p.m. Klein, a certified public accountant and financial planner, discusses "Your Financial Health."

Robert Martin, professor of education, gave a presentation titled "Using Games and Other Play Materials in Counseling At-Risk Students" at the International Reality Therapy Convention last July in Vancouver, B.C.

Barry Cole Poyner, assistant professor of communication, had an article titled "Adding a Ceremonial Touch" published in The Speech Communication Teacher, Vol. 7 (Fall 1992).

Melissa Rose, assistant professor of piano, performed four concerts at the conservatories of music in Kazan and Moscow, Russia, in June and July. The concerts featured piano solo and chamber music by contemporary American composers including George Rochberg, William Bolcom, John Adams, and Warren Gooch, assistant professor of theory and composition. She also gave presentations to musicologists and composers at the Moscow Conservatory. In July, Rose performed with clarinetist Kelly Burke at the International Clarinet Conference in Cincinnati.

Judith Ziffer, assistant professor of family sciences, and Albert Ziffer, instructor of family sciences, presented their paper titled "Arming Women in the Age of AIDS," at the American Psychological Association Centennial Convention. The convention was held Aug. 13-18 in Washington, D.C.

Introducing New Faculty Members

This is the third in a series of profiles featuring new faculty.

Albert Ziffer, temporary part-time instructor of family sciences, received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Columbia College and his Medical Doctorate degree from the New York University College of Medicine.

Paul Visich, assistant professor of exercise science, received his Bachelor of Science in Education from Pennsylvania State University, Master of Science from George Williams College, Master of Public Health and Philosophical Doctorate from the University of Pittsburgh.

Mary Ellen Simpson, assistant professor of nursing, received her Bachelor of Science in Nursing from Illinois Wesleyan University and her Master of Science in Nursing from the University of Illinois.

Judi Misale, assistant professor of psychology, received her Bachelor of Arts degree from California State University, and her Master of Arts and her Philosophical Doctorate from the University of California-Santa Barbara.

1993 United Way Drive Begins

The 1993 United Way Drive kicks off on Oct. 1. This year's goal at Northeast is $33,000 which includes the student goal of $5,000. The drive is being co-chaired by Duane Ford, assistant professor of agriculture, and Jenny DiMuzio, academic planning services advisor.

Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity, is heading the NMSU student drive. The student United Way committee is headed by James Osgood and is planning several fun driving events.

The drive will begin with a breakfast on Oct. 1 at 7 a.m. in the SUB Georgian Room. Group leaders from each division and/or office will be attending the breakfast, where they will hear brief presentations from both President Warren and Ford.

Following the kickoff breakfast, every University employee will receive a United Way brochure explaining each of the organizations. Each employee will also be asked to consider pledging to the United Way, either by payroll deduction or by direct pledge. Please read the brochure and consider pledging to the United Way.

Northeast Today will highlight all agencies funded by the United Way Drive. Featured this week are the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts of America.

Girl Scouts (Becky Thatcher Area Girl Scout Council, Inc.) helps girls develop to their fullest potential and become competent, resourceful women. Girl scouting gives every girl, of every race, religion and neighborhood, skills to cope with and resist problems which threaten healthy development - drug abuse, child abuse, homelessness, and teen pregnancy, to name a few. Each girl is encouraged to develop skills and abilities to reach her potential and attain the self esteem and self confidence needed to succeed in a larger world. She interacts with positive, female role models and routinely sees women in positions of responsibility. In 1991, Girl Scouting in Adair

Executive Leadership Experience

Application Procedure

The Executive Leadership Experience provides you the opportunity to spend two working days with President Warren or another senior Northeast administrator. Whatever the administrator does during those two days, you will be right there, in on it all.

Application for the Leadership Experience is open to any student in good academic standing with a record of, and commitment to, excellence in leadership. To apply, you should submit an essay, 500 words or less, describing your record of leadership on and/or off campus, and your commitment to leadership as suggested by professional aspirations. The essay should address why you seek the Executive Leadership Experience and how it would prove beneficial to you. Please include address and telephone numbers. A resume (optional) may be included with the essay.

Applications should be submitted at the front desk of the Career Placement Center no later than 5 p.m., Oct. 15. A selection committee will evaluate applications and determine finalists to be interviewed the week of Oct. 19. The committee's decisions shall be final. Selected candidates will be notified by Oct. 30.

Dates for the Leadership Experiences will be chosen to accommodate schedules of both the participating administrators and the selected students. Dates will be available both fall and spring semesters.

County made the critical difference in the lives of 312 girls and adults, during more than 19,968 hours of program contact. It has been an agency of Adair County United Way since the first drive in 1956.

Boy Scouts of America (Great Rivers Council) maintains the mission to serve others by helping to instill values in young people. Boy Scouts prepares them in making ethical choices over their lifetimes in achieving their full potential. The Council/District supports local scouting units by recruiting, training and motivating caring adult leaders. More than 1,000 youth and adults were served in the Thousand Hills District in 1991. It has been an agency of Adair County United Way since the first drive in 1956.
