Smith to Kick Off Black History Month

Dwyane Smith, former assistant dean of Multicultural Affairs at Truman, will return to campus to kick off the celebration of Black History Month, which will focus around the theme Reflections from Within. Smith will present his lecture, "Unspoken Legacies: The Higher Education of African-Americans in America Prior to the 1900s," at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 7, in the SUB Down Under. The lecture will focus on the history of black education in the United States.

Smith, a native of St. Louis, received his bachelor's degree in psychology in 1984 and his master's degree in education administration in 1991 from Truman. He is currently pursuing his doctorate in higher and adult education from the University of Missouri - Columbia. He served in the Multicultural Affairs Center at Truman for over 15 years.

Smith will discuss the education of the first blacks at Jamestown, early inroads, the first blacks to receive degrees, the ante-bellum and post-Civil War periods, the age of Booker T. Washington and will end with the Plessey vs. Ferguson decision.

Black History Month has been celebrated at Truman for a number of years. Originally established on Feb. 19, 1926, as Black History Week by Virginia educator Carter G. Woodson, it was initiated to honor historical contributions of black Americans. Woodson discovered that black history was not traditionally covered in the public schools at that time and devoted his life to the promotion of their history.

The celebration was expanded to include the month of February during the American Bicentennial in 1976 and has remained a month-long celebration ever since. February was chosen because the month marked the birthdays of both Frederick Douglass and Abraham Lincoln.

Lyceum Series Presents Klezmer Band

The Kohlenberg Lyceum Series will present the Maxwell Street Klezmer Band at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 14, in Baldwin Auditorium. The band is a hip folk-music ensemble that uses humor and history to pay tribute to the early immigrants of Chicago and the lost world of Eastern European Jewish culture.

Maxwell Street consists of two vocalists and eight instrumentalists who combine to present an entertaining blend of dance music, folk songs, theater songs and jazzy Yiddish pop music from the 1930s-1950s. The group performs music drawn from the Maxwell Street Marketplace, a popular entertainment site for the wave of Russian-Jewish immigrants who settled in Chicago at the turn of the century.

The group has performed in Carnegie

Hall, Damrosch Park in New York and on several stages across Europe. They also appear annually in a Hanukkah Concert featuring Peter Yarrow of Peter, Paul and Mary. Maxwell Street's high-energy performances are filled with talent and humor

This performance is sponsored by the Heartland Arts Fund Program, the National Endowment for the Arts and the Missouri Arts Council.

Campaign Seeks Lyceum Contributions

As part of the special commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the Kohlenberg Lyceum Series, the Centennial Celebration committee, chaired by professor emeriti of science Dean Rosebery, is concentrating its efforts upon increasing current funding for the Series.

"As the Kohlenberg Lyceum Series Centennial Celebration campaign nears completion, I am asking Truman employees to consider making a gift to the Lyceum Series during the Faculty/Staff Campaign," said Rosebery, "Gifts to the Truman State University Foundation will not only support the Series, but will also count toward the campus-wide faculty/staff participation goal."

Efforts to increase the fund received a huge boost when the committee received a $50,000 challenge gift from an anonymous local donor. The benefactor agreed to match all Lyceum Series gifts from individuals, dollar for dollar, up to a maximum of $50,000.

To date, the committee's efforts have resulted in $17,300 in corporate gifts and $49,500 from individuals. The committee is just $500 short of the $50,000 goal for individual gifts.

Rosebery feels that the success of the Centennial Celebration campaign appears to indicate that the Kirksville community has an appreciation for the cultural opportunities that are provided through Truman's annual series.

"I hope faculty, staff and all interested patrons will express their appreciation of the Kohlenberg Lyceum Series and all the time and effort that Dr. Gilbert Kohlenberg, Dr. Ruth Towne and so many others have contributed, by making a gift to the Lyceum Series," added Rosebery.

For convenience, faculty and staff who so desire may request that contributions to the Lyceum Series be donated through the payroll deduction system.

For a schedule of the remaining performances, see the sidebar on page one.
