Researcher Gordon Bell to Kick Off Distinguished Speaker Series

The Science and Mathematics Distinguished Speaker Series will begin with a presentation by Gordon Bell at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 4 in Magruder Hall 2001 at Truman.

Bell's presentation is titled, "Lifeloggging: The Experience and Joy of Becoming Immortal." "Lifeloggging" describes the recording of everything occurring in life—in effect a "transaction processing" system for a life.

Bell was born in Kirksville, and spent much of his early life helping with the family business, Bell Electric. He went on to earn his bachelor's and master's degrees in electrical engineering from MIT. Bell then taught computer design classes at the University of New South Wales in Australia before returning to the U.S. to begin his career.

During his career Bell has worked for multiple companies and is currently employed by Microsoft Research where he studies telepresence and related ideas. His interests include lifeloggging, digital lives and cloud computing.

For more information, contact the Science and Mathematics Department at 660.785.4547.

Kohlenberg Lyceum Season Begins Sept. 14 with Step Afrika!

The Kohlenberg Lyceum Series kicks off its season with Step Afrika! at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 14 in Baldwin Auditorium.

Step Afrika! is a professional stepping company that combines footsteps, claps and spoken words to produce complex rhythms. The performances are much more than shows; they integrate songs, storytelling, humor and audience participation. Step Afrika! has performed at the White House, Lincoln Center in New York City and many other prestigious stages.

Step Afrika!

Tickets will be available free of charge for students, faculty and staff starting Sept. 6. Students may pick up their tickets at the Student Activities Board Office in the Student Union Building. Faculty and staff may get their tickets at the information desk in the Student Union Building. General admission tickets for each performance are $7 per person and can be purchased approximately one week before the presentation at Edna Campbells or the Truman State University

The Lyceum continues Thursday, Nov. 7 with the Liverpool Legends Beatles Tribute Band. Liverpool Legends is a decorated cover band that has been headlining in Branson since 2006. The band has traveled and performed in venues such as Carnegie Hall and The Cavern Club in Liverpool, among many others. Liverpool Legends perform songs spanning the entire career of the Beatles and use vintage instruments and outfit changes for an authentic feel.

Liverpool Legends Tribute Band

The Kansas City Chorale will perform their holiday concert Saturday, Dec. 7. The group will provide the audience with a historical variety of both new and traditional holiday music. The choir has won multiple Grammy awards for its refined sound and flawless intonation; most recently in 2012 for their recording, "Life and Breath: Choral Works of Rene Clausen" and for Best Choral Performance.

Kansas City Chorale

American Shakespeare Center will perform "Othello" Monday, Feb. 4, 2014. "Othello" is a classic Shakespeare performance of love and rage. The always-popular American Shakespeare Center returns to act out the pairing of Shakespeare's most trusting man and his most ruthless villain, and the complexity of emotions throughout the performance.

"Othello"

The final performance of the Lyceum series will be another Shakespeare work. "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be told through dance and mime by The Minnesota Ballet on Saturday, March 22, 2014. The Minnesota Ballet began as a dream for advance students to stage their own productions, but has evolved into an international touring company and its own school.

Truman Ranked No. 3 by Washington Monthly

Truman State University has again been named one of America's best colleges by a national publication.

Truman is No. 3 in the Best Master's University category of the 2013 Washington Monthly College Rankings. Truman is the only Missouri school listed in the top 75, and the only public Missouri school on the entire Top 100 Master's Universities list.

Washington Monthly bases its rankings on three criteria: social mobility, which gives colleges credit for enrolling low-income students and helping them earn degrees; research production, with particular emphasis on schools where undergraduates eventually earn Ph.D.s; and commitment to service. More information about the rankings can be found here.

In addition to the Washington Monthly, The Princeton Review listed Truman as one of the nation's best institutions for undergraduate education. The education services company has again featured Truman in its annual college guide, "The Best 378 Colleges." Only about 15 percent of America's four-year colleges are profiled in the 2014 edition.

Solar Panels Added to Campus Buildings

In an effort to reduce University energy consumption and make the campus more sustainable, solar panels were installed on five buildings during the summer.

Barnett Hall, Ophelia Parrish, the Student Union Building, Magruder Hall and the Health Sciences Building all had solar panels installed on the roof. Each building can produce up to 25 kilowatts, accounting for about 2 percent of their total electrical needs for any given year. At the current cost of electricity, the solar panels should save at least $2,400 per year.

While the economic benefits to the University are a plus, they are not necessarily the driving force behind the installation of the solar panels. Truman's strategic plan calls for making campus more sustainable by reducing the consumption of resources.

Additionally, the solar panels will eventually be connected to monitoring software that instructors can incorporate into their classrooms. Students will be able to see how much electricity the panels produce and get a better understanding of how they work.

The implementation of the solar panels on campus is due largely to the work of representatives from the President's Sustainability Action Committee, Facilities Management and Campus Planning. In March, the small group presented the idea to the University administration. Shortly thereafter, a request for proposals was sent out and a contract was awarded to Brightergy of Webster Groves, Mo. Installation began in early August and the panels were producing electricity by the first week of class. Additional panels may be added in the future.

Solar panels were added to five buildings on the University campus to reduce energy consumption and increase sustainability.

Truman Students Complete FLITE Internship at Boeing

Four Truman students completed The Boeing Future Leaders in Thought and Experience (FLITE) internship during the 2013 summer.

The students completing the internship were Christopher To, Waymon White, Kimberly Carlton and Blake Miller.

The Boeing FLITE Internship Program is a unique, fast-paced 10-week internship program designed to create world-class inclusive thought leaders. The program structure teaches participants to drive innovative and creative business-focused solutions. Four days during the week are spent working at Boeing in a specific business function. Every Friday throughout the internship, the students participate in FLITE School, which is separated into five sections: Beyond Business Basics; Captain and First Officer Session; Ready for Takeoff; Thought Leaders Take FLITE; and 20/20 Vision. This structure was designed to maximize the FLITE participants learning experiences and increase their business acumen, as well as create more immediate synergies between professional development and deliver impactful results.

The first section, Beyond Business Basics, teaches FLITE participants the fundamentals of Fortune 500 financial analysis through hands-on instruction with Boeing based data sets. From finding cost inefficiencies among thousands of rows of data to displaying results in an "executive ready" presentation, the FLITE interns truly went beyond business basics and learned the hard skill-sets required to be an effective business analyst. The second section, Captain and First Officer, is a speaker series in which Boeing managers and frontline leaders provide an overview of their specific business function. It teaches the interns what a "day in the life" would be like in that function.

The third section, Ready for Takeoff, is an advanced nine-part development series that provides the interns with the intangible soft skill sets that are critical to being an effective thought leader. The fourth session, Thought Leaders Take FLITE, encourages participants to challenge the stereotypes and misconceptions that can potentially derail an individual along his or her path to true thought leadership and action. Finally, the fifth section, 20/20 Vision, provides the interns with a first-hand exposure to Boeing products. Interns toured the Prologue Room, F-18, F-15, JDAM and practiced their skills on the flight simulators.

FLITE is a true partnership between Boeing and three select Midwest Universities: Truman, Saint Louis University and the University of St. Louis - Missouri. For the 10-week internship, interns live together in the University of Missouri- St. Louis' Oak Hall Dormitory. The summer culminates with the interns presenting to Boeing executives about their experience. This internship allows Boeing to identify top talent earlier in their academic career while providing students with an unparalleled learning experience that they can apply to their business classes.

Portrait and Historical Letter Added to Music Hallway

An article, historical note and portrait have been added to the display in Ophelia Parrish Building.

In the spring of 1994, Thomas Trimborn, professor of music, wrote an article that appeared in the BDGuide (Band Director's Guide), a national magazine that was sent to 20,000 high school and college band directors. The article was titled, "Can We Escape History?" and was written about pioneering individuals who created a path for future musical direction. The article contained his band pioneer portraits that now hang in the Music Hallway of Ophelia Parrish Building.

Frederick Fennell, an internationally recognized conductor and founder of the Eastman Wind Ensemble, mailed a handwritten note to Trimborn after reading the article. The article, note and a portrait of Fennell have been donated and added to the collection of portraits by Trimborn to complete the display.

Gieseke Named Public Relations Intern

The Truman Public Relations Office has chosen Natalie Gieseke, a senior communication major, as intern for the Fall 2013 semester.

Gieseke is from Blue Springs, Mo., a suburb of Kansas City, and a 2010 graduate of Blue Springs South High School. She is the daughter of Steve and Katie Gieseke.

Natalie Gieseke

As intern for the Public Relations Office, Gieseke will help write the online University newsletter, Truman Today. She will also aid in writing and producing the University's magazine, the Truman Review. Gieseke will also assist in planning the 2013 Family Day, write press releases and fulfill other office tasks.

On campus, Gieseke is the service chair for Lambda Pi Eta National Communication Honors Society, a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma social sorority and serves Truman's campus liaison for Target.

Gieseke hopes to gain valuable real-world experience from her time as the Public Relations intern this semester. She plans to pursue a career in management or public relations.

Theta Alpha Kappa Inducts New Members

Truman's chapter of Theta Alpha Kappa, a national honor society for religious studies, inducted two new members, Alison Stagner and Amy Johnson, in a special meeting May 8. At a pre-commencement meeting, the two new inductees were given honor cords to wear. Inductees from last year, Ben Batzer and Jasmine Johnson, were also given honor cords.

Established in 1976, Theta Alpha Kappa has grown to more than two hundred chapters nationally, ranging from smaller liberal arts colleges to large public research institutions. It is the only national honor society dedicated to promoting academic excellence in baccalaureate and post-baccalaureate students in the field of religious studies. The society also maintains a vigorous national program of scholarship and fellowship competitions, including annual awards and the publication of outstanding student papers.
