Scholarship Offers Opportunity for Students to Recognize Former Teachers

Through the support of Truman's education alumni and a generous estate gift, the James and Margaret Mudd Teacher Recognition Scholarship has been endowed and will allow for the ongoing recognition of excellence in education.

This coming January, graduating seniors will have the opportunity to recognize a high school educator/counselor, whom they feel made a positive impact on their academic growth. The chosen teacher/counselor will then receive an invitation to be formally recognized and participate in Truman's spring commencement. To further acknowledge the recipient, a $1,000 scholarship, in their honor, will be awarded to an incoming Truman student from the teacher's/counselor's high school.

Since its origin as a normal school in 1867, Truman has been committed to providing a strong teacher education program. Over the years more than 8,000 teachers have received preparation from the University, and the program is deeply rooted in the University's history.

Graduating seniors will receive an email in January with nomination process instructions. Anyone who wishes to donate to the Teacher Recognition Scholarship fund may do so by contacting the Truman State University Office of Advancement at 660.785.4133.

MISSOURI LONDON OFFERS CHANCE TO BRING ROCK N' ROLL HISTORY TO LIFE

In summer of 2013 Truman students have the opportunity to join students from other institutions to explore London and Liverpool through the Missouri London study abroad program.

While abroad, students may earn credit, of which they can choose to apply to their JINS or Aesthetic modes. Gregory Jones, professor of music, will be offering his specially formatted JINS 306 course—with a curriculum centered centrally around the English locale.

Students will explore the roots of rock music in London by visiting neighborhoods and clubs related to music legends such as The Rolling Stones, The Who, Led Zeppelin, David Bowie, The Sex Pistols and other influential groups.

The class will also travel to Liverpool. A special stop at the Cavern Club is included so that participants can hear firsthand accounts of The Beatles as well as their role in changing the music industry of their era.

The course runs from May 22-June 15. For more information regarding this program, visit the program website programs.capa.org/mlp or email grjones@truman.edu.

Study Abroad Course to Visit Europe, Asia

Enrollment sessions for Truman's cultural and religious study abroad course "East Meets West," will take place at 4 p.m. Dec. 12 in McClain Hall 208 and at 6 p.m. Jan. 15 in McClain Hall 209.

"East Meets West" combines study, lectures, travel and work in areas across Europe and Asia known for a rich convergence of ancient and modern contexts. The program includes visits to four countries and occupied territories.

The course begins with one week in Italy, with visits to the historically rich cities of Florence and Rome. Notable stops in the area also include the catacombs, papal audience, the Vatican Museum and Pompeii. The program continues with a week spent in Greece, visiting Athens and various other key attractions such as the Meteora monasteries, Philippi and Thessalonica. The program's third week in Turkey is spent exploring many areas like Istanbul, Nicea, Pergamum and Ephesus.

Finally, students will spend their last two weeks in Israel. They start out at an Israeli kibbutz—training and working at Bethsaida, one of antiquity's most important archaeological Biblical sites. Then participants move on to Old Jerusalem and the West Bank, visiting Nablus and Shechem in the north and Bethlehem and Hebron in the south.

The course carries six credit hours and extends from May 24-July 7. Five preparatory meetings are scheduled before departure. A daily journal, research paper and reading assignments are requirements for completing the course.

For more information, contact Mark Appold, associate professor of philosophy and religion, at mappold@truman.edu.

Food Fast Contributes to United Way Goal

This year's United Way Campaign will be concluding soon, however there is still plenty of time to make a donation. To date, the Truman community has contributed more than $49,000 to the Truman United Way Campaign, representing 88 percent of the University's $56,000 goal. The student Food Fast campaign and contributions from Sodexo employees exceeded $7,200.

During the week of Oct. 22 students participated in the Food Fast campaign by donating meals and dining dollars as contributions towards the United Way goal. Both student advisers and Sodexo staff played an integral role in the campaign's promotion and implementation. Members of the Food Fast committee presented a check to John Dungan, head of the Adair County United Way, following the conclusion of the program.

To make a donation, contact Sally Herleth, sallydet@truman.edu, or Pam Ryan, pjryan@truman.edu, for a pledge form. Donations support the United Way of Adair County. The local United Way has among the lowest overhead in the nation, allowing a greater percentage of contributions to go straight to local programs helping people in the area pursue their goals of education, income and health.

CARE for AIDS to Sponsor Book Drive

CARE for AIDS will be hosting a book drive in the Student Union Building during finals week with donations contributing to the funding of care centers in Kenya.

The hope of this organization is to bring awareness to the global issue of AIDS by diversifying the campus' knowledge on the HIV/AIDS crisis.

CARE for AIDS has a fundraising goal of $50,000 for the year, which will keep two centers in Kenya open for a year. The CARE for AIDS organization as a whole currently has 14 care centers across Kenya that have nearly 2,000 graduates from the program. More than 1,000 individuals are currently in the program. The centers take in HIV/AIDS victims and provide food, medical counseling and spiritual encouragement to live and not die from the disease.

Book donations can be made in the Student Union Building from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. during finals week. Each donation will go directly toward further funding one of the care centers. Donate three books and get a free t-shirt.

For further information on CARE for AIDS visit careforaids.org.

Students Attend Archeology Conference

Seven Truman students participated in the Annual Biblical Archeological Conference which took place at the University of Nebraska Omaha, Nov. 8-9.

The conference focuses on archaeological work done at Bethsaida—located in modern day Israel. After 25 years of excavation, the site is known as one of antiquity's most important Biblical locations. Its significance dates back to the Iron Age when the site served as a Geshurite capital city. Later, in the Roman period, Bethsaida played a primary role in the ministry of Jesus.

Each of the Truman students in attendance at the conference had first-hand knowledge and experience related to the excavation of Bethsaida.

All seven were participants in Truman's Middle East Study Abroad course last summer, which in addition to two weeks of travel through Turkey, Jerusalem and the West Bank, included two weeks of work at Bethsaida.

This year's conference featured two keynote speakers from Israel. Avraham Faust of Bar-Ilan University spoke on the ethnogenesis of Israel, while David Ussishkim of Tel Aviv University discussed Jerusalem at the time of Solomon, Hezekiah and Nehemiah. Thirteen other scholarly papers were showcased at the conference including a presentation by Truman's Mark Appold, associate professor of philosophy and religion, who spoke on narratology and archaeology.

Highlighting 2012 Truman Student Internships

Jessica Scheetz, New York City

Senior Jessica Scheetz traveled to New York City to pursue an internship with Parents magazine. As a communication-journalism major, Jessica researched all of her internship opportunities on the website ed2010.com, which is a networking site for those interested in the magazine industry. She acquired more than 15 interviews based off her resume with student media at Truman. "I haven't had any internship experience prior to this, so my learning experience with Truman media has been crucial and invaluable in my success with Parents," admits Jessica. During her full-time internship, Jessica's tasks included: blogging, researching story ideas, fact-checking, interviewing celebrities, assisting with photo shoots, assembling articles for the magazine, running regular mail routes, compiling presentations for the executive editor, indexing and archiving previous issues and helping with a special "Best Books of 2012" project. During her 11-week internship, Jessica had the opportunity to assist the editor with organizing a child identity theft story, which earned Jessica a byline within the next few

"This was unlike any internship experience I could have possibly dreamed of. The editors knew my name within the first few weeks, and the compassion they showed for their work was undeniable. I would highly recommend this internship. It was an incredible experience."

Cameron Jadali, a senior exercise science (pre-physical therapy) major, traveled to Port-au-Prince, Haiti, to work in a clinic for the non-profit organization Global Therapy Group. His duties at the Haitian clinic included: manual stimulation of muscles, application of pain-relieving electronic stimulation, providing long term exercise prescriptions, cleaning supplies, giving therapeutic massages and recording patient data. His work experience as a certified personal trainer for two years, along with knowledge learned in exercise science courses, aided him with his work. During physical therapy observation hours in the U.S., laws prohibit non-licensed physical therapists from touching the patients, which can make observation hours somewhat repetitive. This trip to Haiti allowed Cameron to interact with patients in a way not possible in many other settings. His experience has strengthened his resolve to become a physical therapist and will help him in his future endeavors.

"This experience was so special and different from many of the other exercise science internships because I got to engage in hands-on work."

Cameron Jadali, Port-au-Prince, Haiti

Andrea Boerding, Cape Town, South Africa

Junior exercise science (pre-occupational therapy) major Andrea Boerding, interned with the "Dreams to Reality" program in Cape Town, South Africa. During her six weeks, Andrea worked Monday through Friday at Sunrise Educare in the Capricorn Township. She engaged the classroom of three- and four-year-olds in activities to strengthen their motor skills while teaching simple lessons such as days of the week, colors and emotions. At the end of the day, students received a recreational hour consisting of a dance warm-up and a team building activity, such as soccer. During the afternoons, Andrea would volunteer with the surfing program and the after school pre-teen sports program. Her favorite part of the internship was getting to know the kids.

"The people of South Africa are incredible, especially the kids. This opportunity was simply an amazing, life-changing experience because it totally pushed me out of my comfort zone and turned out to be the best six weeks of my life."

During her four-month study abroad program in Berlin, Germany, senior Amanda Shetler accepted the opportunity to intern as a member of the Cultural Studies Team. Amanda assisted with marketing and organizing the Master of Arts in International Relations and Cultural Diplomacy program. She also researched certain topics for classroom discussion, such as the use of film as cultural diplomacy. Working 40 hours per week, Amanda helped set up and run the Institute for Cultural Diplomacy (ICD) Annual Academic Conference on Cultural Diplomacy, which hosted a variety of diplomats and academics who spoke on the progress made by cultural diplomacy. Monday night panel discussions, in which all interns gathered to discuss issues relating to culture and diplomacy, offered insight into the many different experiences and backgrounds of her colleagues. Ultimately, the internship served to reiterate exactly what Amanda was striving to gain from her experience abroad: an increased understanding of, and interaction with, new cultures, ideas and people.

"I had the opportunity to interact with people who call various parts of the world, 'home.' A simple walk from the kitchen to my office provided lessons in Hungarian, Romanian, Chinese, German, Italian, French and Spanish."
