Walker and Doris Allen Fellowship Recipients Announced

Truman State University President Jack Magruder showed up unannounced in classrooms March 5 to present three outstanding Truman faculty members with a $10,000 award for their outstanding contributions to the University. The Walker and Doris Allen Fellowships for Faculty Excellence are the result of the generosity of Walker and Doris Allen.

Walker graduated from the University in 1939 and Doris attended the University from 1938-39. The Allens established the Fellowships with one of the largest outright gifts ever made to the Truman State University Foundation. As former teachers, who remembered the significant impact their own instructors had on them, the Allens wanted to create a way for Truman to recognize outstanding faculty members who have contributed to the success of the University and its students. The first recipients of their generosity are: Patricia Burton, professor of philosophy; Linda Seidel, professor of English; and Mary Shapiro, assistant professor of linguistics.

Up to three fellowships will be awarded annually to Truman faculty to recognize outstanding performance in the areas of teaching, scholarship and institutional service.

Distinguished Scholar to Visit Campus

Manning Marable will begin his visit to Truman State University as the final guest of the 2001-2002 Distinguished Visiting Scholar Program with a public lecture "Leadership and the Challenge of a Multicultural Democracy" from 7:30-8:30 p.m., March 27, Violette Hall 1000. A reception will follow the public lecture in the Violette Hall Commons.

Marable is one of America's most influential historians and political interpreters of the black experience. He is the author and editor of nearly 20 books and anthologies including "Let Nobody Turn Us Around" (2000).

In 1976, Marable began writing "Along the Color Line," a syndicated political affairs series that regularly appears in more than 400 black-owned and black-oriented mass publications.

Marable received his bachelor's degree from Earlham College in 1971. In 1972, he received his master's degree from the University of Wisconsin at Madison. He received his doctorate from the University of Maryland at College Park in 1976.

Marable is the founding director of the Institute for Research in African American Studies and serves as professor of history and political science at Columbia University in New York City. Previously, he was founding director of Colgate University's Africana and Hispanic Studies Program and chaired the Black Studies Department at Ohio State University. In 2001, he initiated the Malcolm X Project at Columbia University.

Marable's visit will continue with a book signing at 11 a.m., March 28, at the Truman Bookstore. He will speak about "Diversity in the University" at the Faculty Development Luncheon from noon-1 p.m., March 28 in the Student Union Building Georgian Room. Marable will conclude his visit with a public colloquium about "Malcolm X" from 3-4:20 p.m., March 28, in Violette Hall 1000.

Students to Deliver Presentations at 7th Annual Psi Chi Research Conference

Psi Chi and the Social Science Division will present the 7th annual Research Conference from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., March 23, in Violette Hall. Research presented will relate specifically to the field of psychology.

There will be presentation sessions in the morning and afternoon by University students and students from surrounding schools. All student presentations will be in Violette Hall 1412. Poster presentations will be in the Violette Hall upper commons.

Kathleen McCann will be the keynote speaker of the conference at 10:35 a.m. in Violette Hall 1148. McCann is a Truman alumnae who received her bachelor's degree in psychology in 1994. She received her master's degree and doctorate in child clinical psychology from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. McCann is currently completing her post-doctoral fellowship at the University of Missouri-Columbia in the field of health psychology. She will address the issue of psychology in public policy.

Jeffrey Vittengl, Psi Chi faculty adviser, will also present original research at 12:45 p.m. in Violette Hall 1148. His research will explain the physical control of psychiatric patients.

For more information about the conference, contact Kelley Rudolph at 627.0964 or at k1489@truman.edu.

University to Celebrate Diversity Day on Campus

The Student Organization Center (SOC) will celebrate diversity on the Truman campus through Diversity Day from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., March 26, in the SUB.

The Truman Talent and Fashion Show will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the SUB Activities Room. There will be bands on the Mall from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and an Activities Fair from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the Quiet Lounge. Diversity Day will also feature speakers in the Alumni Room from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The SOC was originally created to promote diversity on the University campus. It includes the following organizations: African Students Association, Bacchus and Gamma, Conflict Resolution and Mediation, Lifestyle Advocacy Program, Phi Sigma Pi, Prism, and the Residential Hall Association.

For more information, contact the Student Organization Center at 785.4571.

CSEQ Part of Assessment Program at Truman

Truman began utilizing the College Student Experience Questionnaire (CSEQ) as a formative and outcomes assessment instrument in the 2000-2001 academic year.

The CSEQ measures student progress and the quality of students' experiences inside and outside of the classroom. The instrument is administered as a homework assignment to first-year students in the Extended Freshman Week course and to juniors in the Junior Interdisciplinary Seminar (JINS). For juniors, the CSEQ replaced the locally developed Institutional Student Survey (ISS).

The CSEQ Student Advising Report includes five summary sections: learning activities, practices that promote better learning, opinions of the campus environment and making progress.

Sixty-three percent of the Truman freshman students who completed the CSEQ in fall 2001 and provided their student identification number received the CSEQ Student Advisory Report (SAR) in February from the Dean of the Residential College Program (RCP). A copy of the report has also been shared with each student's RCP or business adviser.

Junior students who completed the CSEQ through a JINS course during the spring and fall 2001 semesters and provided their student identification number will receive a CSEQ SAR this month.

Beginning with the 2002-2003 academic year, students will be able to compare their scores on the CSEQ SAR during their junior year with scores from their first year at Truman if they provided their ID number and took the instrument both times.

Notables

Jim Barnes, writer-in-residence and professor of comparative literature, had his poem titled "In Aix-En-Provence" accepted for the special Elvis issue of River City, a magazine for the arts based in Memphis, Tenn.

Twenty one Truman students attended the Spring Conference of the Missouri Broadcast Education Association (MBEA) at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., March 1. Luke Willman, senior communication major from Naperville, Ill., took first place in state competitions for dramatic audio production for his production "The Adventures of Edgeman No. 2" and for sports play-by-play announcing. Andrew Ashbaugh, senior communication and computer science double major from Wauconda, Ill., received honorable mention for the KTRM Web site. Elizabeth Clark, TruNews adviser and MBEA vice president, and Mary E. Hurley, KTRM adviser, accompanied the students. The Speech and Hearing Clinic, under the special project direction of Janet Gooch, associate professor of communication disorders, and Melissa Passe, clinical supervision coordinator for the clinic, has received the Outstanding Partner Award from the Missouri Head Start Association. Truman's Student Senate was mentioned in the winter 2002 edition of Student Leader for the development of a "hybrid" computer system which is available over Truman's internal computer network. The system developed by two computer science majors allows students access to an electronic ballot which includes bios on the candidates, photos and descriptions of issues. Nicholas K. Pinalto, senior exercise science major from Edina, Mo., was recently named the George C. Marshall Award winner from Truman. Given annually, this award is presented to the most outstanding cadet in the Army ROTC program at Truman. The award is named in honor of Army General George C. Marshall, who served as the Chief of Staff of the Army and Secretary of both State and Defense. Pinalto was selected for his professional excellence, leadership, personal integrity and selfless service to the nation. Pinalto will be commissioned May 18 and will be assigned to Fort Rucker.
